

Acme Corp Annual Financial Report 2026

Financial Department

July 2026

1 Executive Summary

Acme Corp has experienced a dynamic fiscal year in 2026. The transition from legacy anvil manufacturing to cloud-based enterprise solutions has been finalized. This document outlines our Q1-Q4 revenue structures, operating expenses, and future projections. The narrative sections detail our strategic shifts, while the appended tables provide raw financial data for our stakeholders.

2 Market Conditions

The first half of the year saw significant market volatility. Despite supply chain disruptions in the hardware sector, our software division grew by 45%. We anticipate this trend to continue into 2027 as more organizations adopt our AI-driven analytics platforms.

Division	Growth (%)	Market Share
Software	45%	22%
Hardware	-12%	8%
Consulting	15%	14%

3 Quarterly Financial Breakdown

The following table details the revenue, expenses, and net profit across all four quarters of the 2026 fiscal year. Notice the significant capital expenditure in Q2 related to the new data center acquisitions.

Metric (in Millions USD)	Q1 2026	Q2 2026	Q3 2026	Q4 2026
Gross Revenue	$12.5	$14.2	$13.8	$16.1
Operating Expenses	$4.2	$8.5	$4.5	$5.0
R&D Investment	$2.1	$2.3	$2.5	$3.0
Net Profit	$6.2	$3.4	$6.8	$8.1

3.1 Notes on Q2 Expenses

As shown in the table above, Q2 operating expenses spiked to $8.5M. This was a planned expenditure for the acquisition of our new Kalyani server farm, which will support our expanding cloud infrastructure and local AI deployment capabilities.

4 Future Projections and Asset Inventory

Moving into 2027, the company aims to optimize its hardware inventory. Below is a snapshot of our current high-value hardware assets that will be depreciated over the next 36 months.

Asset ID	Description	Qty	Unit Cost	Total Value
HW-901	Enterprise Server Rack	15	$12,000	$180,000
HW-902	Nvidia H100 GPU	40	$30,000	$1,200,000
HW-903	Cisco Core Switch	5	$8,500	$42,500

4.1 Conclusion

The board remains optimistic about the structural changes made this year. We expect profit margins to stabilize by Q2 2027 as the initial infrastructure investments begin generating recurring revenue.
